Situated in the historic heart of Gujarat, Bharuch—formerly known as Broach—is strategically situated about 100 kilometers from the Arabian Sea and 390 kilometers from Gandhinagar. This ancient city has long been renowned for its trade significance, with references found in Greek and Roman texts highlighting its importance as a major port and commercial center. Bharuch's rich history is shaped by various influential powers over the centuries. The city has been influenced by the Chalukyas, Gujarat Sultanate, and Mughals, each leaving their mark on its cultural and architectural landscape. Portuguese and British colonial rule further impacted its development, adding new layers to its history.Today, Bharuch presents a fascinating blend of historical charm and modern growth. It offers a unique experience for visitors, combining its rich heritage with contemporary amenities. The city's vibrant atmosphere and historical significance make it an inviting destination for both business and leisure travelers.

We welcome you to explore the vibrant blend of rich heritage and modern vitality that characterizes the unique city of Bharuch.
